

Visa Information

When deciding to marry a Filipino woman, U.S. citizens generally opt for a K-1 Fiancé(e) Visa. This specific visa permits the Filipino fiancé(e) to enter the United States with the intention of getting married. The couple is required to tie the knot within 90 days of the Filipino partner's arrival.

For citizens of other countries, the process of bringing a Filipino wife to your home country may differ. Generally, you will need to apply for a particular type of visa, such as a fiancé(e) or spouse visa. It is essential to consult your country's immigration authorities and adhere to the appropriate procedures and requirements.
